

Tecplot Single User License Policy Acknowledgement

Rev. 20201230

Tecplot's End User License Agreement States:

Single-User License. If Licensee has purchased a Single-User License, Tecplot, Inc. allows one (1) designated individual user, and only that individual, the right to Install and Use the Software on one (1) computer or one computer with local display and remote access to such computer by the designated individual user through VPN. The designated user may share said user's display through desktop conferencing software. Use on any additional computers or on a virtual server is not permitted without written permission from Tecplot, Inc.

In order to obtain more than one license key for a single user license, the licensee must abide by the following terms, and sign the acknowledgement.

Terms and Conditions:

- Tecplot will provide up to a total of three keys per license upon receipt of signed agreement which will allow for a single license to be used on up to three machines.
- This benefit is revocable at any time at Tecplot's sole discretion for any reason including the licensee discontinuing maintenance on the license, or future policy changes.
- The license is not to be used concurrently on multiple machines. The intent of this policy is to allow the licensee to use a single license on multiple platforms (e.g. Window and Linux, or workstation and laptop), not to be used to increase throughput on multiple machines.
- All license keys for a given license must only be used by one designated individual and no other users are permitted for any reason.
- All other terms of the license policy are still in force.

The licensee acknowledges and accepts the terms and conditions for the use of this agreement:
